

COURT PROPOSAL FACES STIFF FIGHT IN SENATE, BELIEF

Administration Leaders Declare They Will Secure
Passage In House

TREMENDOUS ACTIVITY

Unbroken Flow of Interviews
With Legislators Now
In Progress

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—President Roosevelt's proposal to increase the Supreme Court to 15 members ran into snags today in the House and Senate with its ultimate approval in some doubt.

Administration leaders declared they would secure its enactment in the House, but conceded they face a terrific battle in the Senate. A partial poll of the Senate by International News Service disclosed 33 senators now favored it; 37 opposed it, and the remaining 26 in doubt, on the fence, non-committal or out of the city. The polls showed neither side was certain of victory at this early stage.

There was tremendous activity by administration leaders in behalf of the President's program. This included an unbroken flow of interviews with legislators, by Interior Under Secretary Charles West, the President's "contact man" with Congress. A long fight appeared in prospect. On the one side stood the President's great personal prestige, backed by his tremendous landslide victory last November, which his followers interpret as a mandate from the people to enact the judicial reforms he now asks.

On the other side stood the Senate's great liberal leaders, back to back, fighting the President's proposal to increase the Supreme Court.

Wendel Case To Be Tried

New York, Feb. 9.—Principals in the drama of Bruno Richard Hauptmann again appeared across the front page today, as two separate courts prepared to sift the bizarre kidnapping of Paul Wendel.

Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, widow of the man who died for the murder of the Lindbergh baby, once more faces a court ordeal.

In Newark, N. J., meanwhile, Federal authorities prepared to arraign Ellis H. Parker, Mount Holly, N. J., detective, and his son on Federal indictment in the Wendel kidnapping. Governor Harold G. Hoffman has refused their extradition to face the Brooklyn charges.

EDDINGTON CHURCH TO OBSERVE DAY OF PRAYER

Four Cottage Prayer Meetings
Are To Be Held In Different Communities

ANNOUNCE PROGRAM

EDDINGTON, Feb. 9.—For the third consecutive year members of the Eddington Presbyterian Church and Sunday School will observe a World Day of Prayer this Friday. An interesting program has been outlined which includes four cottage meetings in four different towns.

The cottage meetings will be simultaneously at 2:30 in the afternoon and it is expected that at least 60 people will attend them. There will be one meeting at the home of Mrs. F. A. Simons, Cornwells Heights. Mrs. Simons will be the leader of that meeting and Mrs. Walter B. Kirk, will be the pianist.

The second meeting is scheduled at the home of Mrs. Albert Brown, Eddington. Mrs. J. Harold English will act as the leader and the pianist at this group meeting. The third meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Jasper Lorimer, Croydon. Mr. Arthur C. Wilkinson will be the leader and Miss Isabella S. Jones, pianist. The fourth meeting is scheduled at the home of Miss Eleanor Davis, Bridgewater. Miss Miriam Peters will be the leader and Miss Davis will be pianist.

The announcement of the meetings urges members to go to the cottage prayer meeting nearest their homes. The meetings are for prayer and meditation. As a part of the program the Church bell will be rung every hour on the hour for exactly one minute. The first ringing will be at six in the morning and the last at 9 at night.

To climax the afternoon cottage meetings a united prayer service will be held in the Eddington Presbyterian Church at eight in the evening. The Rev. H. Oursler, minister of the Cornwells M. E. Church, will bring the message. Rev. Oursler has traveled in many parts of the world and his message will be extremely interesting at this service.

The World Day of Prayer was first observed in 1927, and since then hundreds of thousands of persons participate in its observance each year. In the United States the Day of Prayer is truly inter-church both locally and nationally. Federations of churches, hospitals, schools, mission centers as well as individual Christians participate.

Carried Politics Too Far; Under Bond to Keep Peace

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 9.—Thomas Barger, 71, of Trevoze, today was under $500 bond to keep the peace because Judge Hiram H. Keller believes he carries his politics "too far."

Barger arrived in the Bucks County Court on complaint of his neighbor, George Cameron. Their trouble started last Fall, when Barger, according to Cameron, changed from a Republican to a Democrat. Since then, Cameron testified, Barger has been shooting rats around his barn and tossing their carcasses into his yard with the remark: "There's another dead Republican for you."

Annual Message of Chief Burgess

To President and Members of Bristol Borough Council, Bristol, Pennsylvania.

Gentlemen:

It has been a source of deep satisfaction and pleasure to realize that for nearly twenty years, I have had the honor to be associated with you gentlemen in conducting the affairs of our Borough and to realize that in all that long period of time, our relations have been most friendly and harmonious.

Your various Committees have kept within their appropriation, and have been conservative and careful in the management of each department of our Borough.

While the finances of the Borough are in far better condition than the previous year of 1935, there is still too large a percentage of unpaid taxes and water rentals, and I urge continued conservative management in all the various departments of our Borough.

Your Street and Highway Committee reports the following streets rebuilt:

McKinley—Farragut to Trenton.
Roosevelt—Farragut to Trenton.
Taft—Trenton to Wilson.
Monroe—Wilson to Trenton.
Chestnut—Jefferson to end.
Washington—Wood to Cedar.
Green—Linden to Maple.

There were 15 miles of streets patched and maintained.

Your Municipal Water Supply Committee reports that the W. P. A. Project for the rehabilitation of the four original filter units was started in November.

This work consists of dismantling these old filters, as well as the pipe and connections, and replacing with new filters of the same type, but using all new cast iron pipe and fittings, which will make a much more permanent and lasting installation. The clear water basin is being covered with concrete slabs, in order to avoid contamination from outside sources.

When this work has been completed, the filter plant will be equipped with all new filter units, having a total capacity of 4½ million gallons daily, or over 3000 gallons a minute.

The boiler room ceiling has been enclosed, and the pumping station has been repointed where needed.

There were a total of 172 new services in 1936, six in the Borough and 168 in Bristol Township, making a total in the Borough of 3091, and 424 in the Township.

Total pumpage for 1936: 616,310,000 gallons, an increase of approximately 60,000,000 gallons over the previous year.

These figures show clearly the need of the work on our Water Department in order to keep up to the great increase in the growing demands for water service.

Our citizens continue to enjoy uninterrupted service in their water supply and sewerage service, and I again remind our citizens that credit is largely due to our Borough Engineer, John S. Roberts, Jr., who plans and supervises these vital departments of our civic life.

Your Fire Committee reports 104 calls for 1936, of which 16 were out-of-town calls. The property loss in the Borough was $2,806.75, and losses to contents $3,895.00, or a total loss of $6,701.75.

All fire alarm boxes were rewired during September and October, and the apparatus and equipment is in first class working condition.

The regular inspection of all business and residential properties was made during the year, inspectors being aided greatly by the splendid co-operation of the property owners.

SUSTAINS APPEAL IN GAME LAW VERDICT

Stephen J. Younger, Bristol,
Discharged and Costs
Placed On County

OTHER COURT CASES

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 9.—In an appeal from a summary conviction yesterday in which Stephen J. Younger, of 330 Taft street, Bristol, was the defendant, charged with a violation of the game laws, Judge Boyer sustained the appeal and the defendant was discharged, the costs being placed on the county.

Edward Rich, 28, of Trevoze, a special deputy game warden, testified that he saw Younger gunning on November 6 last year in Southampton township, and at the time, Younger's gunning license was attached to a string that was hung around his back, the plate dangling across his back. Rich had Younger arrested for not properly displaying the license tag.

Judge Boyer, after hearing the testimony, said that this law was a matter for the Legislature to correct. "We are of the opinion," Judge Boyer continued, after a conference with Judge Keller, "that the act is faulty for it says 'display' and not 'wear' the tag so that all figures are plainly visible; the act says display and not attach. The act should read 'attach to the back of the outside garment.' This offense was not made technically and the defendant is discharged and the costs placed on the county."

Younger appealed his case from the office of Justice of the Peace Leo L. Lynn, Bristol township, who imposed a fine of $20 and $250 costs. Younger had paid $3 fine on account and this was directed by the court to be refunded to Younger by Justice Lynn.

In an appeal from a summary conviction on a charge of disorderly conduct, Jesse A. Davis, of Bristol, was discharged after the appeal had been sustained by Judge Keller and the cost placed on the county.

Charged with operating an automobile while drunk on the Croydon bridge, Jesse S. Plant, of Croydon, pleaded guilty yesterday. The officer in the case testified that Plant's accident resulted in no injury. He produced excellent character witnesses, showed that he had paid damages in the case and that he was a trustworthy employe of a well-known Philadelphia manufacturing concern for 23 years, and that he had never

French and Latin Pupils Spend Day In New York

Thirty-two students of Bristol high school are still exclaiming over the sights of New York City, a journey having been made by the group on Saturday.

French and Latin students from the 11th and 12th grades, as well as a few from the 10th grade section, accompanied by their respective teachers, Miss Gertrude Murphy and John Burris, had a thoroughly enjoyable and instructive trip.

A special car was assigned to the group when it left here by train at 8:30, and a special car was used on the return journey likewise, the party reaching Bristol at 10:30 p. m.

Reaching the metropolis the young women and young men visited the N. B. C. broadcasting station, then had luncheon in the same building. Upon reaching the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts the French students, accompanied by Miss Murphy, visited the French collection; and the Latin students, with Mr. Burris leading, viewed the Roman and Greek collections.

Miss Murphy then led her party to the Aquarium, and later to Trinity Church, with dinner following at a French restaurant; while the Latin pupils visited the Metropolitan Museum, and had dinner in Greenwich Village. The parties spent the evening in Radio City Music Hall.

Irving Jacobs, of Philadelphia, arrested by Constable Edward Roberts, Jr., and Stanley Bish, of Philadelphia, arrested by Patrolman Purcell, were also fined $5 and costs for failure to have their cars inspected.

Refuses To Permit Wife To Aid Those Stricken By Flood

A resident of this area refused to permit his wife to donate $1 to the Red Cross flood relief fund, stated a worker for the local branch of the Red Cross today.

"He refused to permit his wife to help in this great effort to alleviate illness, and distress, and to rehabilitate those home-less families in the mid-West, stating the Red Cross workers were merely trying to build up a large total in order that their commission might be larger," added the righteously indignant Red Cross worker, who is one of many giving of their time and talents free of charge in order to help humanity.

"Every cent collected by the workers for flood relief purposes for the Red Cross goes for that purpose. The expenses incident thereto are taken from the regular roll call returns. Every worker in the Bristol Chapter is a volunteer, and receives not one penny of pay. Mrs. Mary Holland, in charge of the home service department from the Philadelphia Chapter, who devotes her entire time to Red Cross work, is the only one working in this area who receives a salary. Mrs. Holland has an office in the Bracken Post home of the local American Legion Post, which post gives the space free of charge, and is thus helping in a worthy cause. Mrs. Holland is at the post home each Wednesday between the hours of one and three p. m." added the Red Cross worker.

Bristol and surrounding area, as well as all of Bucks County, is answering this challenge nobly, in aiding stricken families, and every dollar given will mean much more than a dollar to those who for weeks have seen nothing but murky flood waters, illness, death, destruction of homes and all things held dear.

Fenton-Conca Nuptials Are Performed Saturday

St. Ann's Catholic Church was the scene of a wedding Saturday afternoon when Miss Rose M. Conca, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benedict Conca, 325 Lafayette street, became the bride of Benjamin J. Fenton, Bristol, son of Mrs. Samuel Fenton, Philadelphia. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Marcellino Romagnolo. Miss Frances Tamburella, Dorrance street, played Lohengrin's Wedding March, and Mrs. Jovite Petollilo, 1906 Trenton avenue, sang "Oh Promise Me."

The bride was attended by Miss Fanny DeMarchis, 25 Railroad avenue, and the best man was Sisti Conca, brother of the bride. The bride wore an attractive model of white satin fashioned princess style. The bodice was made with a lace yoke, high cut neckline with long standing collar. The long sleeves were of satin and lace. The long skirt ended in a train. The bridal veil of tulle edged with lace had a headpiece of lace, trimmed with orange blossoms. She wore white satin sandals and carried white lilies. The bridesmaid was attired in a gown of light blue moire taffeta. The bodice was made with the high-cut neckline, and short puffed sleeves. The skirt was long and accordion pleated. She wore a shoulder length veil of tulle with a halo of pink and blue flowers, pink satin sandals and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

A reception was held at the home of the bride, for the immediate families and a few friends. The couple left Saturday evening to spend a few days in New York. The bride travelled in a brown dress, with hat, slippers and gloves to match and wore a green coat trimmed with brown fur. The couple will make their home at 243 Cleveland street.

COUNCIL HEARS SEWING PROJECT REPORT FOR MONTH

A Total of 869 Garments
Were Distributed Thru
Four Agencies

MESSAGE OF BURGESS

Borough Solicitor Advises
Against Proposed Changes
In Plumbing Code

Report of the sewing project which borough council recently agreed to sponsor, annual message of Burgess Clifford L. Anderson, advice from the borough solicitor in regard to a petition from a group of plumbers and discussion concerning the demolition of two abandoned properties on Otter street, occupied the attention of borough council at the monthly session last evening.

The sewing project reported there had been 228 garments distributed to the Needlework Guild, 284 to the Mothers Assistance Fund, 304 to borough council and 53 to the Bristol Day Nursery. A total of 869 garments in all having been distributed.

Councilmen Wagner and Foster spoke upon the work being done at the sewing project in Beaver Fire Station. It was stated that these garments had been distributed to worthy people and that the work was being done without cost to the borough.

Secretary William J. Lefferts read the annual message of Burgess Clifford L. Anderson and upon motion it was received and filed and ordered printed in the borough year book.

Communication was read by Secretary Lefferts from borough solicitor Howard I. James in which Mr. James advised against the appointment of a qualified plumber as inspector of plumbing and also against the proposed amendment to the plumbing code, by which a larger registration fee would be imposed upon non-resident plumbers than resident plumbers. The solicitor's communication reads:

Bristol, Pa., Feb. 8, 1937.
Mr. C. W. Winter,
Bristol, Pa.
Dear Sir:

You have submitted to me a proposed change in the plumbing ordinance whereby there shall be appointed for the borough a qualified plumber as inspector of plumbing.

I am advised that there are only 13 registered plumbers in Bristol.

There have been very few new buildings erected during the last year. The cost of the compensation of an inspector would not be commensurate with the return to the Borough. I, therefore, strongly advise you it would be inadvisable to grant the prayer of the plumbers for a plumbing inspector.

I have very grave doubts as to the constitutionality of the proposed amendments to the Plumbing Code, which imposes upon a non-resident plumber a larger fee for registration than a resident.

I, therefore, advise you that at this time, with the present conditions existing in the Borough, it would be inadvisable to adopt the suggestions in the proposed changes of the Plumbing Code.

Yours truly,
(Signed) HOWARD I. JAMES.

Upon motion the communication was received and filed.

Police committee reported officers made eight arrests during the month with the following disposition of the cases:

Held for court, 2; discharged, 3; fined, 1; committed to county prison, 2. Twelve are and 12 incandescent street lights were reported out during the month. One hundred and 42 tramps were given shelter overnight and one floor was found open.

Plumbers bonds of the following were approved:

B. Lowry, George Peterson, Howard L. Edwards, Frank B. Murphy, Owen F. Evans.

Discussion about the demolition of two properties on Otter street, near the intersection of Linden, again came before council. Councilman Myers, third ward, informed council that after council had awarded S. M. Updike the contract to repair the side of the adjoining property owned by the John P. Betz Estate, that the estate had objected to the character of repairs to be made. At that time the contract involved the expenditure of $79. The Betz Estate requested that the side of the property exposed after the demolition of the adjoining property, be properly sheathed, and covered with German siding. A new estimate from the contractor gave the cost for this work as $170. Council authorized it done.

Councilman DeGroot voiced objection on the ground that it was private property. Councilmen Wagner and Roche were both of the opinion that the property in question was an eyesore and dangerous in its present condition. The demolition would be in conformity with public sentiment, they contended. Councilman Wagner asked for a roll-call and all voted favorably upon the question.

SEAMEN'S STRIKE ENDED

The seamen's strike on the Pacific Coast lasted 97 days. It was ended by the votes of 40,000 members of seven unions, each union acting separately, accepting terms of settlement recommended by the union leaders.

Gains in wage scales, overtime pay and hours of work are made by the strikers; but the shipowners retain full freedom, keeping the right to employ non-union men, in selecting ships' officers and engineers. The terms seem such as could and should have been adopted within a week after the strike started.

An endurance struggle exhausted both sides, tied up 240 ships, practically shut down the Pacific ports, isolated Hawaii and Alaska. The business figure at San Francisco for the losses caused on the Pacific Coast exceeds $600,000,000. The final negotiations were in the hands of Mayor Rossi, of San Francisco. Nothing that counts apparently will be claimed by the intervention of the U. S. Department of Labor.

The votes significantly occur after growing insistence upon a settlement by the rank and file in the unions.

The agreement is a welcome evidence that the current labor controversies are adjustable. And, in the light of the whole story, it argues that neither the interests of the workers nor the employers are served by long protraction, during which the communities most directly affected are heavy losers.

CRUSHING MILITARY COSTS

The world is given an opportunity to reflect with profit on the cause of the crisis in Japan.

The income tax on an income of $1,500 was increased last year from $50 to $70. On $3,000 incomes, the increase was from $162 to $238. (On earned $1,500 incomes of single persons and $3,000 incomes of married persons, the income tax in the United States amounts to about $14.)

Other taxes, some on foods and directly affecting the costs of living were raised. The estimated addition to the government's revenues is $150,000,000. The increases were made because of the government's succession of deficits since its military operations in Manchukuo and China began.

Now a new budget would end another year with another deficit of $300,000,000, twice the amount of the tax increase. That is almost solely because the controlling military insists on continuing the military expenses on a larger scale.

Returns to the Japanese people, promised in new business in Manchukuo and China, are not forthcoming. The cabled news makes it clear that, if the people could vote on the question, under circumstances in which their decision would be effective, they would cut the military costs.

Emphasis is laid on how crushing military costs drain away the people's resources, bringing nothing back. Such spending does nothing for the people at home. Their situation grows steadily worse. In the prospect are contained serious fears that, because of the continuing deficits, currency inflation will result in much higher living costs. Food prices have risen sharply since January 1st, in some cases doubling.

The way to keep people from seeming dumb and selfish is to quit depending on others and do it yourself.

"LUXURY MODEL" by MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XXX

At a table near them was a party of prim grey-haired women.

When the music stopped, Luana could hear them address each other by the prefix: "Miss," and talk of their classes and pupils.

One of them did resemble Aunt Minnie, her stepfather's sister. What would she have done if it really had been Aunt Minnie?

But Aunt Minnie had failed to recognize her at the station, which had been all to the good.

One of these days she ought to run out to Flatbush and explain things to Aunt Minnie, since her stepfather had written her that his sister could well keep a secret and was no gossip.

Also, that Aunt Minnie had been hurt by her silence.

"It's chilly. Waiter, please close that glass partition," ordered one of the four school-ma'ams.

"Jumping Jehosophat! It's warm," Luana said to Jimmy. She forgot about the brooch that was fastened in her blouse. She slipped out of her jacket.

Jimmy helped fix her jacket on the back of her chair.

He went back to his seat and looked at her admiringly. She wore a tailored shirt in turquoise silk that was the exact color of her eyes. It had a little Peter Pan collar with a tie flowing from it that made her look just like a schoolgirl. He told her so. He told her she was loveliest in simple clothes.

"Lucky you think so, for simple clothes are to be my portion."

She stopped.

Would he think she was referring to their future and his poverty? Of course, they would marry. She couldn't live without him. She hastily added: "Outside my working hours, I mean, Jimmy." Then broke off.

What was he staring at? He was meticulously tidy in his own appearance. Perhaps her collar or her tie were undone? Was that it?

She put her hand to her neck hurriedly, and glancing downwards saw the gorgeous brooch wink up at her from her bosom.

Any idea that Jimmy might be the donor of the haughty attitude when she saw his look of surprise, "Isn't that new, Luana?"

What a fool she'd been to remove her jacket!

Now what on earth to say to him?

The truth?

Should she let him think it was just a piece of costume jewelry from the House of Quackenbush? Or...

If she told him that it had come anonymously to her this morning, he could draw but one conclusion. "Handsome!" "That Carew fellow!" Jimmy had referred to him.

And then there would be but one thing to do, in the circumstances. Return his gift!

She said lightly, and despised herself for saying it: "Haven't you ever dropped into that big new dollar shop on Broadway, Jimmy?"

His eyes went from the jewels to her face, as though he sought to probe something there. Then his look lightened. He grinned at her. "From Czechoslovakia?"

She heard her own voice answer: "S'pose so. It's amazing they can make things so cheaply."

"With their low scale of wages, they certainly can undersell us poor Americans. There ought to be a stiff import duty to protect our industries if the manufacturers are to stay in business," Jimmy remarked. Apparently he had accepted her explanation. It sounded natural.

Luana was relieved, and at the same time ashamed of herself.

If Jimmy found out...

stepfather had come for her at the beginning of the week, bringing excellent news. After her late night with Jimmy, she had been in bed on Sunday morning when Yvonne had answered the knock on the door of the apartment, and brought the letter to Luana.

"From an admirer in Hollywood! He is persistent, not so?"

Yvonne had recognized the handwriting.

The "J. McC." of the strange note she had found in Luana's suitcase exactly nine days ago—a note so fascinating that Yvonne had gone the length of copying it before she put it back where she had found it!

"Dear Elizabeth," it had run. "This is to let you know that I have not yet been able to bring about the annulment, but it is under way. Be assured that your father is doing everything to remove the stigma brought upon us."

By special-delivery there was more now, from the same source. She would keep a sharp watch on where Luana put her letter after she had read it, and this time she would hang on to it, Yvonne decided.

She saw Luana's face change from strained anxiety into a look of utter relief when she had perused its contents.

So the "stigma" had been removed? Was that it?

As a matter of fact, the Colonel's letter did contain the grand news of the annulment being granted.

"I'm free... free... FREE!" Luana told herself joyously.

Free to lead her own life! Free to go out with Jimmy, to accept his words of love with a clear conscience!

The only blot on her happiness was a vague thought back to Gerald Bruton. He was still in the city jail in San Francisco, awaiting trial.

Now she could tell Jimmy the truth. She could tell him her real name.

Jimmy arrived at half past ten, that beautiful Sunday, in a funny little shabby automobile.

"A chap in my building hurried off, this morning, to Chicago to his family, as one of his brothers has been taken very sick. This fellow—he's a painter—was breakfasting with me when the wire arrived, and he told me I could have the use of his car while he is gone. What do you say we go up to Lake Mahopac, Luana? It's a three hours' run through very pretty country in New York State, and there's an inn there—a picturesque old place on the edge of the lake—where we can take lunch."

Luana was delighted. But before she left the apartment, she took the precaution of burning the Colonel's letter in the kitchenette.

She had become uncertain of Yvonne's attitude. Yvonne had shown herself extraordinarily inquisitive, lately.

Her spirits rose as they rattled through Harlem and out along with a new show on Broadway, for which Mr. Quackenbush gave her two tickets.

"And go on up to the Parquet afterwards, Luana. The actresses and the Society folk will all be there. I want to put over the new sleeve and draping in the skirt. Wear the 'Blue Moon' gown."

Jimmy accompanied her, looking extraordinarily handsome in his evening clothes. With so many people around, she simply didn't have an opportunity in which to tell him.

And later, Luana hesitated... procrastinated... put off telling him her big secret.

Jimmy was old-fashioned and resented her being stared at by Tom, Dick and Harry. But her job necessitated that she be stared at. There was no denying that the "Blue Moon" gown was extreme.

"Darling," he said to her on the Parquet's terrace where they sat at supper, "if I could take you right out of all this, I'd be the happiest man in the world."

Marriage? He meant marriage? But how on earth could he do it on a shoe-string?

"I've got to eat, Jimmy," Luana smiled at him; then realized her tactical mistake.

For supper was "on the house." Jimmy was not paying for it. That was his plan. He was awfully independent. That he might be taken for a gigolo—for a chap like Tamman—worried him. It was only Luana's insistence, and the fact that Armand would accompany her if he wouldn't, that had brought him here tonight.

"Listen, Luana. I've an idea. Come over to my studio tomorrow evening and we'll work together on those sketches of clothes you had in mind."

"Right. I'd love to." She understood him. Understood that he wanted her to develop her dress-designing talent. Wanted her to have another and better iron in the fire than just modelling.

"The truth is, darling," she said quickly, "that you'd just give your right arm to get me out of Quackenbush's? Or am I exaggerating?"

He grinned at her. "Wise child!"

Anything Jimmy Randolph said was right with her. Luana went at her sketches with a will. She curtailed her luncheon hour, and worked with her pad and pencils in the dressing-room of the shop, all through that enchanted week, so that she had something to show Jimmy in the evening.

"You've a grand color sense, Luana," he encouraged her when she brought her crayons to his studio. With Jimmy as mentor, she practiced exotic color combinations on her designs for gowns.

"I'd love to open a shop of my own," she said, "where there'd be American styles for American women! When you think how they rush to Paris and fling thousands of good American dollars away on styles that are suited to the short-legged natives when right here in New York they could get clothes at half the price that would be specially planned for the American figure!"

"Bravo, Luana! Atta girl!"

"The American female figure is streamline, Jimmy. Not dumpy."

"Long and lithe and lovely, like yourself, in fact." He kissed her.

"I'm in dead earnest, Jimmy. If I could open a shop I'd soon get a vogue. I know what suits women. When the fat ones come into the salon, and insist on buying things that suit me and my type, I could scream my head off at them. Honest!"

She produced a new drawing.

"I did that in my luncheon hour today. For an out-size! See the camouflage? See the long line that hides that curve?"

He laughed outright. "You might name it: 'Where Calories Are Not Counted!'"

But Luana was serious. "With the following I've got now, plus my acquaintance with the wholesale houses, I'd take the plunge right now if only I'd the capital..."

He smiled wryly. "Wouldn't we all?"

If he had money behind him, even a very little, Luana and he would marry immediately.

Weekly Letter to Home-Makers

A Letter Written by Mrs. Edna Riggs Crabtree to Home-Makers will appear in each Tuesday's issue of The Bristol Courier. Through this medium Mrs. Crabtree will give many helpful hints to home-makers.

Dear Friends:

February should be called "Party Month," for the red-letter dates, February 12, 14 and 22nd provide ample excuse for adult and junior festivities.

Red, white and blue paper novelties are beckoning in nearly every shop, ranging from vivid blue dollies, to use under red-bordered plates, to a generous crown of cherry trees for centerpieces.

St. Valentine's entertainments seldom are restricted to the one date, and are quite apt to crop up any time within the next two weeks, particularly with Cupid's anniversary falling on Sunday this year.

Children's parties fit ideally into the Valentine scheme, since decorations, games and other entertainment are easily adapted. Even those leftover red candles from Christmas fit into the color scheme. And Christmas supplied ample red paper, from which to cut hearts to string as decorations, or to place beneath glasses and plates.

If your luncheon, or party supper, is to be simple, those red-bordered paper plates will be a practical and colorful assistance in serving a lively group of children. There are matching heavy paper cups, too, bordered in red or bright blue. Plates range in three sizes, and of course, there are napkins in gay red polka dots, and others designed as hearts.

Indispensable to the St. Valentine's hostess are heart-shaped molds and cutters.

The grown-ups who come to your bridge luncheon, or afternoon tea, will enjoy heart-shaped cookies, iced in red, heart sandwiches, and a heart-shaped gelatin salad, or molded dessert, just as much as the children.

These inexpensive, individual molds are a good investment, for they speed up service, aiding the busy hostess who must prepare and serve the feast. Another important consideration is that gelatin salads and desserts are improved by being made a day in advance, simplifying the last-minute rush.

Gelatin is a good choice, too, for if you are having youngsters, for a fruit gelatin with whipped cream looks decorative enough to gratify any hungry young heart, yet it is nutritious, simple to prepare, and it is easily digested by young and old.

There is even a large fish mold, which lends itself to a jellied main dish of salmon, crabmeat, or other seafood.

Appropriate salads for a red and white menu might be aspic jelly; tomato cups, stuffed with vegetable salad, or filled with asparagus tips, mixed with green peas; beet salad; tomato salad jelly, or a delicious cream cheese salad, in which tomato soup supplies the desired coloring. Garnish the salads with stuffed olives.

Heart-shaped cutters will provide dainty whole-wheat sandwiches, to be spread with pimiento cheese, or currant jelly, or a mixture of creamed cheese and nuts. Use your heart-shaped cookie cutter to fashion dainty little heart-shaped biscuits.

Many bakeries supply heart-shaped patty shells on order, to be filled with creamed chicken and green peas, or creamed tuna fish. If you are fortunate enough to have mechanical refrigeration, make strawberry or raspberry ice cream, or a delicious mousse colored by red cherries. Some of the cherry juice will color the pink icing for those heart-shaped cakes or cookies.

Old-fashioned games are most popular at the children's parties. If your house can stand the strain, have a treasure hunt, with hearts of all kinds and sizes hidden in each room. Allow a given time for the mad scramble, and have prizes for the victors.

Another sure source of excitement, seldom permitted these days, is a real molasses taffy pull. The candy mixture may be put together and timed so that it is about ready for pulling when the guests arrive. You will be surprised at the fun grown-ups will find in such a novelty. Restrict the guests to one room to prevent the entire house from being smothered, and give each a very small quantity. The first successful "pullet" or "puller" should receive a heart-shaped box of candy for reward.

A rhyming contest is another way to have fun. Provide paper and pencils and allow a given time for a Valentine rhyme of specified length. All contestants must read their poetry aloud! A small book of verse is an appropriate prize.

Try pinning a heart on a large Cupid, placed on the wall, each guest being blindfolded in turn.

It is advisable to work out a definite program of games in advance, so that the party moves swiftly, with no dull gaps.

Wipe Those Bottles

Never pour milk or cream from a freshly-delivered bottle without thoroughly wiping the top of the bottle. Sterilized milk is no help to you if you pour it over the edge of a much-handled bottle.

An Apple A Day

With souffles to the right of us and ice-box desserts to the left (though never left-over), we are inclined to overlook some of the staple foods so essential to good health.

Particularly is this true in the Winter, when we are inclined to covet fresh at "wberrik" and asparagus, instead of recognizing the nutrition and economy in crisp apples and cabbage.

The proverbial saying "an apple a day keeps the doctor away" is more than an old adage. It was based on sound common sense and knowledge of the important contribution to good health made by this fruit.

All of us who are truly fortunate can think back—not so many years ago—to the evenings when the lamplight shone down on a bowl piled high with rosy-cheeked apples, which were crunched eagerly by the children, while they worked at lessons, by Mother, as she mended, and by Dad, as he alternately tried to read and help out on the algebra.

For a special treat, there might be a generous bowl of popcorn, but rarely was there candy, such as the average child now takes for granted.

Today, with the high percentage of apartment dwellers, it is impossible to stock the home for Winter with great barrels of fragrant apples. But all the flavor and crispness that makes the fruit an all-age favorite can be retained in the refrigerator. Train the children to choose an apple when they rush home for that after-school lunch, rather than eating cookies or pastry between meals.

Encourage the youngsters not to peel apples. The skin provides valuable "roughage" and has a mild laxative effect as well.

As already stated, the apple not only is one of our least expensive fruits but it contributes nutrition and necessary vitamins as well.

Apples are a carbohydrate food, containing vitamins A and C, and are high in calcium and iron, those valuable mineral salts. At the same time they provide a mildly acid juice and a fiber which generally are assets to our digestive processes.

With native apples in season, the fruit question should be no problem to those fortunate residents of New York and the New England states, who can boast that they live in the fruitful belt where the finest apples in the world are grown.

Members of the apple family provide such a variety of individual flavors that we chose according to our own preferences among the many which we know by name. The only distinction is made between what we call eating, or cooking apples. In either form we have an important contributor to good health.

Alice Roosevelt Longworth tells how Senators choose a light smoke... considerate of their throats

"I often lunch in the Senate restaurant at the Capitol. Nearly every Senator and Representative there smokes, and the number I see take out a package of Luckies is quite surprising. Perhaps surprising is not the word. Because off and on, ever since 1917, I myself have used Luckies for this sound reason: They really are a light smoke—kind to the throat. It's simply common sense that these Senators and Representatives, whose voices must meet the continuous strain of public speaking, should also need a cigarette that is considerate of their throats... a light smoke."

Alice Roosevelt Longworth

THE FINEST TOBACCOS—
"THE CREAM OF THE CROP"

In a recent independent survey, an overwhelming majority of lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc., who said they smoked cigarettes, expressed their personal preference for a light smoke.

Mrs. Longworth's statement verifies the wisdom of this preference and so do leading artists of radio, stage, screen and opera, whose voices are their fortunes, and who choose Luckies, a light smoke. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on your throat.

VETERAN BOWLING STAR TO GIVE EXHIBITION HERE

Jim Murgie, veteran bowling star of the Philadelphia district, and a national figure in bowling, has been booked to come to Bristol on February 24th. Murgie and the Rosetta Berry Team, claimants of the world's championship, will put on an exhibition match at the Bristol Recreation Center alleys.

Only last week Murgie wiped all unofficial records for perfect games from the books when he connected for perfect scores in three straight games of a six-game match in Philadelphia. These three games boosted his total for perfect games to 40. This brilliant feat of Murgie passed all existing standards for perfect games.

The nearest achievement to match Murgie's perfect-games record was made by Frank Caruana, Buffalo, in 1924, when Caruana rolled two straight.

In Murgie's recent game he rolled off 40 straight strikes to astound the audience and better all unofficial records. This star, who has bowled in various sections of the country in championship matches, is expected to put on an interesting demonstration when he comes to Bristol with the Rosetta Berry team.

Shoot 1,000 Targets in Match; Shoemaker Wins

EDGELY, Feb. 9.—The Edgely Rod & Gun Club got off the first shoot of the year with a big bang, Sunday, shooting 1,000 targets.

Lester Shoemaker, Tullytown, won first prize, a nine-pound rooster, shooting 22 out of 25. Archie Loeb-sack, second; and Ewald Henry, third.

RAMS FALL VICTIMS TO COLUMBIANS, 34-31

"Vic" Potts' Columbians, undaunted at the trouncing received last Thursday, increased their lead in the A. O. H. basketball league last night by winning over the Rams, 34-31, in a hard-fought duel.

It was the combined shooting of Jimmy Lake and "Bill" Harkins which gave the league-leaders their triumph. Each amassed a total of 13 points.

The Celtics continued their scoring rampage and added 58 points to their credit as they swamped the Gaels, 56-37.

Your Fire Department functions with three paid men, the remainder are all volunteer men who serve the interests of our citizens in protecting their lives and property without one cent of recompense. The appreciation and thanks of our citizens is due these men who serve you so loyally and who make so splendid a record.

Chief Hagerman and his officers are to be congratulated on the order and discipline maintained and the fine co-operative spirit of the paid and the volunteer firemen.

Your Board of Health reports fewer communicable diseases than in 1935, there being 261 in 1935 and 172 in 1936. In December, 24 cases of Scarlet Fever were reported and the Board of Health, School Board, with the school physician, Dr. Wm. C. LeCompte, decided that it was advisable to close the Harriman School Building, where the majority of the cases occurred. The Harriman School Building was closed from December 18th, 1936, until January 4th, 1937, during which time the building and school rooms were fumigated and disinfected.

The school physician, Dr. William C. LeCompte, with the co-operation of the Health Board, is preparing to do some nose and throat cultures for hemolytic streptococci on patients and household contacts before they are released from quarantine. There has been a marked cessation of cases reported, and it is believed that the spread of the disease has been curbed.

The Board of Health reports 13 permits to milk distributors, 13 registered plumbers' licenses issued and six sewer permits given, all of which shows diligent and intelligent action, which comes from experience and knowledge of how to solve these essential problems, and the appreciation of our citizens is due these men who so faithfully safeguard the health and welfare of our community.

Your Police Committee reports 127 arrests for 1936, compared with 150 in 1935.

There were no crimes of violence.

Stolen property for the year was $1,405.48, of which $1,022.56 was recovered. Also $465.70 stolen property was recovered outside the Borough limits. This report bespeaks that our citizens are of a law-abiding character, and that our officers under the able direction of Chief Linford J. Jones, are alert and capable.

I would here suggest, as funds are available, that our present police force of five, including Chief Jones, be increased by two officers, as our force is too small to patrol the Borough properly, and to curb recklessness in our vehicular traffic.

The officers and members of Borough Council through various committees, serve the best interests of our citizens with loyalty and an intelligence that comes only from experience, and they tender this service without recompense, and with the desire to do their unselfish part as good public-spirited citizens in rendering service to the community in which they live, to the end that it may continue to improve and that the interest of their fellow citizens and taxpayers may be safeguarded.

The appreciation of our citizens is due the men who serve you so faithfully and unselfishly.

To your Honorable Body and our citizens, I extend best wishes for health and happiness throughout this New Year.

To the Officers and Members of Borough Council, I continue to pledge my unqualified support in any and all problems that tend to the happiness, well-being and progress of our Borough and its people.

Respectfully submitted,
CLIFFORD L. ANDERSON,
Burgess.
